BENNETT SAYS SENATOR CURTIS WAS 'PRINCIPAL'

Says Daugherty Also Sent Reassuring Wire to McLean

WRITER TESTIFIES

Attorney General Back Today From Florida, Attends Cabinet Meeting Undisturbed

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 7.—Ira Bennett, editorial writer on Edward B. McLean's Washington Post, and author of the famous "Principal" telegrams, to McLean told the Senate Oil Committee today President Coolidge was not the principal as some Democratic senators guessed but the principal was Senator Curtis. He testified Curtis told him McLean should not be disturbed by the oil inquiry developments, and that it would be "all right." One of the principal messages said "there will be no rocking of the boat and no resignations." Bennett also testified Attorney General Daugherty sent a reassuring message to McLean in Florida on the day the publisher was summoned here to testify. His message contained such phrases as "all that is possible will be done by us," and "you know what to depend on."

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 7. Attorney General Daugherty returned today from his Florida trip, attended cabinet meeting and emerged without indications of weakened determination to not resign.

YOUTHFUL DELINQUENTS BOUND TO GRAND JURY

Bill Collins, Earl Jones and Clarence Dorton, boys who broke into three business establishments here recently and took valuable merchandise from the store of Brown Bros., were bound to the grand jury at the juvenile court hearing here yesterday afternoon. If an indictment is returned, the case will come before the county judge in juvenile court. The boys will be kept in the detention ward of the city jail pending the grand jury investigation.

Henry Fleenor and Jeff Tucker, boys who confessed to taking part in the robbery of L. B. White's store at the Junction, have been paroled to their parents for custody pending their examining trial in the juvenile court.

POEM TO HONOR W. J. CALLISON'S BIRTHDAY

W. J. Callison, celebrating his seventy-third birthday today, is the proud recipient of a poem written in his honor by his daughter, Mrs. G. D. Walker, of Johnson City. In these days few people have poems written to them We publish this one to show what it is like:

"I'm trying to write a story, just for Fun,
About a baby born in '51.
His first name was William,
His middle name Joe;
His last name was Callison,
As, of course, you know.
This baby grew to be a very fine man.
As fine as ever any man can,
Always honest, always true blue,
As good as gold must be added, too.
Now this month, on the seventh day.
This much-loved man will have a birthday.
And to end this story written for fun,
We send greetings for a very happy one."

MARAUDER AT TWO PLACES LAST NIGHT

Man Threatens Woman, Later Enters Home of Negro Shoots

The homes of Mrs. George Eastridge and Ben Clarence, the latter a negro, were entered last night by a marauder who threatened the lives of the occupants. He fired five times at the negro.

Mrs. Eastridge was awakened at her home near the Belt Junction at midnight by a man who entered by breaking out window. He was armed with a pistol and carried a flashlight.

"Be still," he warned her, "or I will kill you." She begged him to go away, saying she was a widow, alone and unprotected. Appearing to become frightened, the intruder left. Mrs. Eastridge made a fire and remained up until daylight when she notified Chief H. E. Ball, near nearest neighbor, of the occurrence.

Clarence, colored, reports that a man forced entrance into his house on Salisbury avenue. He had a revolver

Shortly after midnight Ben Clarin one hand and a flashlight in the other and, in general, his description corresponds with that of the man who broke into the Eastridge home a short time before.

Clarence sprang from the bed and grabbled with the marauder. The latter fired two shots under the feet of the negro, neither of which hit him. He then ran from the house and fired three times at the negro after leaving the place. Police officers say one bullet went through the house.

Both Clarence and Mrs. Eastridge state that they could not tell whether the intruder was a negro of a white man. Police believe that the same person is guilty of breaking into both houses.

CITY STREETS ARE NOW BEING CLEANED

Mud and Rubbish Shoveled From the Gutters, Street Flusher Used

Work of cleaning the streets in the business sections of town is in progress. Mud and rubbish which has been collecting for weeks in the gutters is being shoveled up and hauled away by city prisoners.

After they are thoroughly cleaned, the task of maintaining them in that continue will be easy. The new street flusher, going over them at frequent intervals, will prevent further accumulation of mud in the gutters.

Commissioner J. E. Evans says that he is very anxious to get the streets clean and that they will be kept that way in the future.

WOULD BRING GOLF TOURNAMENT HERE

E. P. Scales, president of the Middlesboro Country club, went to Louisville last night in the interest of bringing the Kentucky state golf tournament to Middlesboro this year.

The state tournament will begain June 24. There seems to be nothing in the way of bringing the Southeastern Kentucky meet here again this year Coming at a later date than the state meet there will be no conflict.

Mr. Scales sent a formal invitation to the tournament committee several days ago. In the move for the meet he is supported by the Middlesboro Kiwanis club and by business men individually.

Patrolman Jess Hatton has been suspended from the police force by Charles E. Cooke, commissioner of public safety, on account of an incident brought against the policeman by the grand jury at Pineville during the present session.

PLAN TO PLACE ADS IN CHURCH SHOCKS MERCHANTS

Advertising has certainly reached an advanced stage. Indeed, there are not many places where it has not reached. Local merchants were somewhat shocked, however, by the proposition of an itinerant advertiser to prepare and hang in the church a bulletin extolling the merits of very material products.

The matter was brought up at the merchants' meeting last night and, this not being the first example of questionable advertising schemes, a committee was appointed to investigate further propositions of outsiders. Hereafter, no merchant will patronize any advertising scheme until the committee has approved it.

None of the merchants have countenanced the latest proposition. They say that most novelty forms of advertising are not effective and that merchants could annually save enough to pay their dues to the association by not patronizing such schemes.

BILLY SUNDAY WILL HOLD MEETING IN STAUNTON, VA.

STAUNTON, Va., Mar. 7.—Rev. Wm. A. (Billy) Sunday has accepted the invitation extended by the Ministerial Association to conduct an evangelistic campaign in Staunton during the latter part of the month of February and month of March, 1925.

The acceptance of the invitation was received by the Rev. W. E. Davis, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church and chairman of the Ministerial Association. The invitation to Mr. Sunday was extended following a majority approval from the association.

The Sunday meetings will naturally call for the erection here of a large tabernacle, as there is no building in Staunton of sufficient capacity to accommodate the crowds that will undoubtedly wish to hear the noted evangelist. No site for such a structure has yet come up for discussion. The same is true regarding many other details in connection with the campaign. There remains almost a year in which to arrange for the meetings.

YOUTHFUL RADIO FAN PLEASED TO GET "FERN LAKE"

Radio fans take no little pride in their ability to get stations, each designated by a particular jumble of cryptic letters, from all parts of the country. A small boy with a crystal receiving set recently announced he had not heretofore mentioned.

It was a rather inexpensive set that he was able to procure by several hundred soap wrappers. When he had rigged up the wireless outfit by putting up all the necessary wires he attempted to "tune in." As is usual with the amateur, his efforts to filch from the ether tuneful melodies were for a time unrewarded. After a time, however, he got a station and triumphantly announced its name:

"Fern Lake."

FONDE ROAD BILL HAS PASSED HOUSE

Only Governor's Signature Needed Now—Judge Bosworth Wires News

A telegram received this morning from the Hon. J. F. Bosworth announces passabe of the Fonde Road Bill by the house. The bill previously passed the Senate by a large majority and now awaits only the governor's signature to make it a law.

Bell County people are perhaps more interested in this bill, which provides state aid for the road from Binghamtown to Fonde, than any other bill of the kind in this session of the legislature. The road, funds for the surveying and starting of which have already been provided, will leave the Pineville pike at Binghamtown and follow the old belt line to Edgewood, thence up the hollow and across the mountain to Fonde and Pruden at the Tennessee line. Sunday a road will connect thousands of Bell county people up with Middlesboro and Pineville, people who are now completely shut off.

Asbestos Coating for Creamery

S. E. Daniels has been awarded the contract of coating the roof of the Buttercup Ice Cream company plant with asbestos liquid compound. One hundred and fifty gallons of the material have been ordered and the work will begin soon.

DANGER IN KITE FLYING — TOUCH ELECTRIC WIRES

March, with its breezes "loud and shrill," is ideal for kite flying and local boys are beginning to indulge in the sport. It is a perfectly healthful recreation and a seemingly safe one. The representatives of the Kentucky Utilities company have pointed out one danger which has caused fatalities in other cities.

Some of the kite strings to be found on the markets have within the center a small wire to give extra strength. Sometimes fine copper wires are used for strings. Should either of these come in contact with the electric wires above the streets, the 2300 volt shock would be transmitted to the body of the person holding the string or wire, causing injury or death. The K. U. company issues the warning so that boys may not use such strings or wires for kite flying.

BURTON OUT OF RACE FOR SECRETARY NAVY

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 7.—Representative Theodore Burton of Ohio has definitely withdrawn from consideration for secretary of navy to succeed Denby. He said he prefers to remain in Congress.

ODDS ARE FIVE TO ONE ON COOLIDGE'S RENOMINATION

WASHINGTON, Mar. 7.—The uncertainty of Democratic presidential prospects could not be better emphasized than by election bets placed by one of Washington's shrewdest political gamesters.

Five to 1 against McAdoo, Cox, Glass, Underwood, Smith, Cummins and Ralston.

Ten to one against Copeland, Hull, Baker and Davis.

In contrast to his willingness to take the short end against any proposed Democratic aspirant, this same better is ready to place 5 to 1 on Coolidge for renomination, but finds no takers.

Senator Reed Smoot of Utah, the lank, melancholy chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, wheelhorse of the G. O. P. organization machine, and first reader of the Mormon church, has been deeply grieved by criticisms of himself growing out of the Senate oil investigation.

Democrats pounced on the disclosure that Smoot, former chairman of the investigating committee, and Senator Lenroot, present chairman, had visited former Secretary of Interior Fall at his hotel here last December. And the insinuations evolved from that visit were so direct and pointed that even so calloused a partisan as Smoot could not sit silent under them.

Gaining the floor after one of the most caustic speeches on this subject, Smoot made what was probably the most emotional appeal of his career.

Throwing open his coat, as if to bare his breast to his critics, he declared:

"I want to say, Mr. President, that I have not a thing in my heart that I want to conceal from the Senate or all the world.

"If it were possible that my whole heart be opened, and the whole world could read my thoughts, I should be perfectly willing to have it done. I have never done a thing in all my life that I am not willing for every soul that lives to know."

While educators, idealists and captains of industry have been struggling to bring North and South America to a better understanding, a big two-fisted beefeater from the Argentine has accomplished more in a few months than all the other influences have in a score of years.

So says Franklin Adams, counselor of the Pan-American Union.

"Firpo", says Adams, "is the greatest civilizing agent South America has produced."

According to Adams, Firpo has caused more folks in this country to study up on South America, its people and resources, than all the pleading propaganda of the Pan-American Union, South American trade bureaus and other "civilizing" agencies combined. And he has caused more South Americans to do the same with respect to us.

KENTUCKIAN INDIGNANTLY DENIES CHARGES BY THE FEDERAL GRAND JURY OF BRIBERY AND CORRUPTION

Langley Asks Chance Be Given to Clear Self

PAPERS ACCUSE

Pikeville Man and Congressman From Maryland Named Today As Implicated With Forbes

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 7.—Representative Langley on the floor of the house today demanded investigation of published charges that he received money for exerting official influence "in the presence of Almighty God and these witnesses," the Kentuckian said, "I have committed no crime, have done no wrong and confidently rely on speedy vindication at the hands of my colleagues." Langley was cheered by the house when he concluded his appeal for a square deal.

Langley said he had heard for several days whispered rumors that his name was brought into the Chicago grand jury investigation, but decided to wait until charges were made but newspaper charges today decided him. He said he had served the government thirty years and never before had any aspersions been cast on his personal or official integrity. He mountains where "people value honor said he came from the Kentucky more than their life." He said he was shocked at the accusation and asked if the Department of Justice report contained his name. He asked that he be given "the right to stand face to face with my accusers." Meanwhile he said he was without any special information as to charges and could not enter any specific denial.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Mar. 7.—Representative Langley of Kentucky and Representative Seihlman of Maryland, both Republicans, denied today that they ever improperly exercised their official influence and received money for doing so. Denials followed publication of their names in connection with charges by the recent Chicago grand jury that two members of congress misused their offices. Both representatives said they heard rumors of their implication and had discussed the matter with newspaper men but they declared they had received no official information that they were involved at all in the case. They are emphatic in asserting that they could prove their innocence beyond any doubt if charges are preferred against them.

Langley is chairman of the House Public Building committee and represents the Tenth District. His home is at Pikeville. Seihlman is chairman of the Labor committee. He represents the Sixth Maryland district and lives at Cumberland.

DISCUSS BUY IN MIDDLESBORO WEEK

Small Attendance at Merchants' Meeting Last Night, Little Was Accomplished

Further plans for the "Buy in Middlesboro" week campaign were discussed at the Merchants' Association meeting last night. The main topic considered last night was that of advertising preliminary to the event.

A form for an eight-page advertising circular was submitted and it was announced that when all the advertising space is sold to merchants a small profit to the association will result. Five thousand of the circulars will be printed and mailed out to residents of this section.

Only a few members of the organization being present, plans for procuring an out-of-town speaker for the banquet preceding the campaign were not decided upon.

Mr. Parsons states that he was coming towards Middlesboro and met the other car. He was on his side of the road, he claims. Seeing that he was going to hit the other car, he put on his brakes. The wheels of his car were sliding when the right of it struck the left of Mr. Zacharias' car.

Mr. Zacharias, who was riding in the back seat, was thrown to the floor. His nose was crushed and one of his eyes badly hurt. He was sent to the Brosheer-Brummett hospital in a passing truck. Both cars were so damaged that they could not be driven to town.

Two other men, one of whom was driving, were in the Zacharias car. John Howard was riding with Mr. Parsons.

CINCINNATI AND THE HIGHWAY

There should be a cordial participation in, and support of, a movement inaugurated by Mayor Carrel, of Cincinnati; the Mayor of Asheville, N. C.; prominent bankers and business men of Kentucky and representatives of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce and the Automobile Club—a movement that has for its purpose the completion of the small part of the famous Dixie Highway which alone at present prevents that splendid thoroughfare from being one of the finest and most profitable in the world.

The route under consideration, when completed, will be accessible to two million tourists from the lake region and sections to the North, Northwest and Northeast who go to and return annually from Florida and other Southern resorts by the Eastern or seaboard route. But the route which here is suggested is seven hundred miles shorter that the seaboard route, with only about twenty-four miles through sparsely settled counties in Kentucky that are without tax appropriations for the completion of the work.

The business value to Cincinnati of getting this route completed practically is incalculable. It should be completed at once to accommodate the returning tourist travel from Florida and the South.

Asheville has made a splendid showing in this matter, but the interest of Asheville in his work is not so great as the interest of Cincinnati.

Three hundred and twenty thousand tourists already are in Fdrida, whose return trip may be shortened seven hundred miles via Cincinnati. But this is not all. Each year this travel will be increased. Then there are the ever-increasing tides of local or semi-local traffic that will place Cincinnati in a much coveted touch and daily intercourse in point of trade and mutual exchange of business with all the small towns and farms through which the highway passes.

Cincinnati's quota essential to the consummation of this important enterprise is relatively small. Representative business men of the city will solicit the necessary funds and hope for a quick and satisfactory response to the end that the work may be completed before planting season when the valuable assitance of the farmers will be no longer available.

We're whole-heartedly for this proposition because its success will mean so much to the city. We believe that citizens of Cincinnati will make it possible for the work to be begun at once. —Enquirer, Cincinnati, Feb. 28, 1921.

WHITE MOSS FOR GOVERNOR

It is none too early for the Republicans of Kentucky to begin preparations for the next gubernatorial campaign. A campaign of education and development of men and measures must be undertaken to the end that the party can present not only a program but a set of candidates to fit the situation thus crystallized.

That the time has come for a new shuffle and a new deal is apparent. The old timers have worn themselves out and the public will respond only to he wissues and new men.

The arrow of popular approval seems to point to a young statesman of Pineville, the Hon. White L. Moss, who now represents his district in the Kentucky Senate. Mr. Moss embodies these characteristics in his make-up that entitle him to Republican leadership.

He is a foremost good roads' advocate. Kentucky is demanding more and better roads, and this is especially urgent in the mountains, the large Republican section of the state. Mr. Moss ties into this program as does no other prominent Republican in the Senate today. He is an acknowledged leader in this respect.

It is also important that the Republican candidate be right and stand right on the pari-mutuel question. The fact that the Democrats have only smothered the question for the time being, instead of putting it to sleep forever, makes certain that the gambling issue will be in the next campaign even more pointedly than it was in the last. No Republican can hope to win who does not stand out firmly against legalized gambling on the race-tracks. Mr. Moss was one of the fourteen Senators who voted against the pari-mutuels in the Senate last week.

He is also a forceful speaker. At the Lincoln Day dinner in Louisville his address was praised by those present as one of the best efforts made during the evening, when many brilliant men spoke.

Mr. Moss is clean in his private living and open and aboveboard in his public work. He is just the type of man that would make a most acceptable and a most creditable candidate for the Republicans. He lives in the very center of the Republican stronghold of the State, and would not only draw heavily from his own section but would be a better vote getter in the other portions of the State than most any other man who could be mentioned.

It is important for the Republicans to know well in advance what plan is to be followed in any given race, and to prepare in every way to build to that objective. White L. Moss offers the party its best chance and its greatest hope in our opinion, and The Commonwealth is pleased to speak this sentiment this far in advance of the time to make the nominations.—Somerset Commonwealth.

INCINERATORS FOR GARBAGE DISPOSAL

Norton, Va., a town smaller than Middlesboro, is considering the purchase on an incinerator for the prompt and sanitary disposal of garbage.

This method of waste disposal is the only satisfactory manner that has been found to rid the city of unsightly and unsanitary garbage heaps. Most of the garbage collected from the streets, vacant lots and yards is of a destructible nature and the incinerator method entirely eliminates the foul odors ever prevalent at city dumps.

Without directly suggesting that Middlesboro should provide an incinerator, it may be said that some manner of adequately disposing of city garbage should be adopted. The need for this will soon be emphasized more than ever when the annual clean-up resulting in the collection of over 200 loads of rubbish is made.

City dumps which are made here are a menace to public health and should not be tolerated. There are old ponds which may be filled, of course, and the parts of old cars, tin cans and other metal rubbish should be dumped there until the places are filled. The ponds are not likely to last forever and when they are filled we will still be confronted with the garbage disposal question.

The matter is certainly one which should receive the attention of the new city commissioners. If they can work out some manner of permanent and satisfactory rubbish disposal and have it strictly enforced it will be a great help to the appearance of the city and the health of the residents.

FELLOWSHIP OF PRAYER

FRIDAY

The Christian Life

Read Mt. 22:34-40. Text: 22:37-39. Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.

1. To become a Christian is to begin a certain wonderful way of living that men will be glad to continue always, even into the far ages.

2. In this way of living there is a glad and growing awareness of working with the will of God to create a good world.

3. Such a good world is one in which all kinds of men work well together; with an invincible good-will in their hearts.

4. It is a life which utilizes all the incentives to such work that God has been pouring, and still is pouring, into the life of man through the personality of Jesus Christ."

Meditation: In the simple words of these commandments Jesus gave the foundation of his gospel. To be a Christian we, too, must start here and build on this foundation.

Personal Question: What is first in my life?

Prayer: Heavenly Father, in whose love we find our life, we pray thee to enlarge our capacity for true living by teaching us to love thee as we should, and to look upon all thy children with thy affection. Amen.

However, comma—

NEW YORK, Mar. 7.—Morning newspapers in this city broke out the other day with front-page stories quoting David Belasco as saying that rather than yield to the Actor's Equity he will quit producing after June 1.

The tremendous effect of this ultimatum was not quite felt until evening of the same day. A remarkable change came over the metropolis. Policemen on traffic duty blew their whistles more sharply than before. Patrolmen on beats carried their night-sticks in their left hands instead of their right. The subway jam actually stopped for passengers instead of ignoring them. It was terrible.

Belasco's broadside boiled down means—nothing. He has four shows playing, only two of them here. "Laugh, Clown, Laugh," with Lionel Barrymore, will last but until March 22, when it will tour until the fateful June 1. "The Other Rose," with Fay Bainter, may not stay here that long. Lenore Ulric is touring in "Kiki" and David Warfield now is on the coast playing "The Merchant of Venice." It is hardly likely any of them would have remained through the summer. Why, then, the fuss?

It seems to me Mr. Belasco is not confining his excellent dramatic sense to the stage of his theatres. He knows that the name "Belasco" has come to be synonomous with the word "theatre." He has the same effect on the public that Santa Claus has on children.

"When Mr. Belasco finds how smoothly and advantageously to both producer and actor our plan will work," says Frank Gilmore, executive secretary of the Actors' Equity Association, "he will be the first to acknowledge it and return to the old stand. I cannot believe he will definitely leave the theatre."

Many share Gilmore's opinion.

The current issue of the Review of Reviews devotes its leading article to an editorial and highly interesting discussion of the modern newspaper. It recites "the newspaper stands incomparably first as the agency through which the country discovers its common interests."

Newspapers have become a national, even international habit. To fail to read a newspaper "for even a brief respite would be a deprivation." All of that is true. You need merely to examine yourself to prove it.

Development of the daily newspaper within the past 65 years has been fast, but sure. Gradually they have become more independent. Responsibilities have increased and with them, caution.

One does not think enough about paper. They have become a habit, and habits are taken for granted.

Time surely makes a diff)
My poor old body freezes
And all my limbs are stiff.

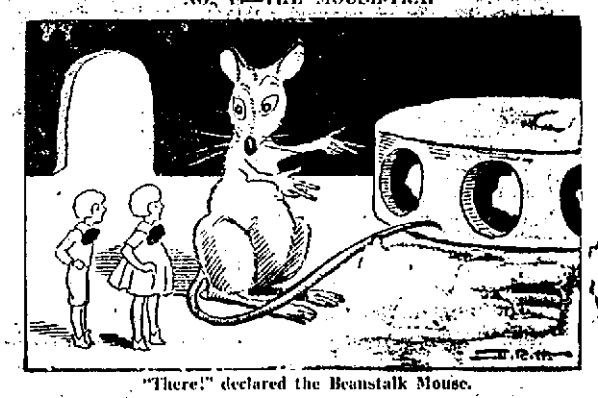
Time was I didn't worry
Or fret an awful lot,
Or wish for spring to hurry
Till spring was on the spot.
But winter's hurly-burly
Palls on me soon, somehow;
I start in wishing early
That spring would come—right now.

Each year I weary quicker
Of frigid winds that blow,
Each year I'm getting sicker
Of slush and sleet and snow.
Before the fireside ember
For earlier springs I sigh,
To start about November
And end about July!

Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton

NO. 11—THE MOUSE-TRAP



"There!" declared the Beanstalk Mouse.

"Now then," said the Beanstalk Mouse to Nancy and Nick when he had carried them safely out of the dark drain, "we are in the gardener's cellar where it is nice and dry. And now I shall show you the funny round dish the gardener has been kind enough to se for me."

"What is it like?" asked Nancy.

"It's round and has holes in the sides, also some very shiny whirligigs with bits of cheese hung on them, all ready for me to dine on. I do think the gardener is a grand man to be so kind! But come on. I'll show it to you. It's right over here under the steps. And you must be my guests and have pot-luck with me. There is plenty of cheese for all."

The Twins were not so anxious to share Mister Mouse's meal as they were to see the wonderful dish he spoke of. What kind of a dish could it be that had holes and whirligigs in it? But Nick said he was sure they would both be much obliged to stay and everything, and after that all three of them went over to the dark place under the stairs.

"There!" declared the Beanstalk Mouse with a wave of his long tail. "There is the dish right there in the corner. And do you smell the cheese? Really it smells so delicious it almost makes me want to sneeze."

"Why!" gasped Nancy the minute she set eyes on it. "That's a mousetrap, Mister Mouse!"

"A what?" shrieked the mouse, backing away in a hurry. "What did you say?"

"A mousetrap" replied Nick. "Those whirligigs are springs, and if you touched any of them, you'd be caught.

"Are you sure?" exclaimed the mousemouse doubtfully.

"I'll show you," said Nick. "Only the trap is so big and I'm so little, I'm not quite sure I can work it." No wonder Nick had his doubts, my dears, for the Beanstalk Mouse was as big as a pony and the mousetrap was as large as a—oh, about as large as a garage.

Nick picked up a big piece of wood and reached into one of the holes on the side of the trap.

Scarcely had the stick touched the cheese, when bang! The trap went off like a cannon, turning completely over and knocking the Twins off their feet.

"Dear, dear! Are you hurt?" squealed the Beanstalk Mouse rushing up. But Nancy and Nick jumped right up, as spry as crickets.

"We're all right, Mister Mouse," they laughed. "Don't worry."

"You saved our lives, and we are glad to do the same for you," said Nancy. "But remember, you mustn't get too greedy or you may get into trouble yet."

"What's all this I hear down here?" said a great voice just then, and the door into the cellar opened and the gardener looked in. "I thought I heard mice squeaking. I'll just have to look at that trap."

But when he got there not a thing was to be seen, but the overturned trap. Nancy and Nick had skipped off.

And as for the Beanstalk Mouse, he had scurried down a hole, long tail and all!

SHADE

The kindliest thing God ever made,
His hand of very healing laid
Upon a fevered world is shade.

His glorious company of trees
Throw out their mantles, and on these
The dust-stained wanderer finds ease.

Green temples, closed against the heat
Of noontime's blinding glare and heat,
Open to any pilgrim's feet.

The white road blisters in the sun;
Now, half the weary journey is done,
Enter and rest, O weary One!

And feel the dew of dawn still wet
Beneath thy feet, and so forget,
The burning highway's ache and fret.

This is God's hospitality,
And whoso rests beneath a tree
Hath cause to thank Him gratefully.

AN INTERVIEW WITH MADAM CURIE, DISCOVERER OF RADIUM, "WORLD'S GREATEST WOMAN"

MADAME MARIE CURIE

PARIS, Mar. 7.—Poverty?—not at all.

Bitterness?—maybe just a bit, because all his life her husband wanted an adequate laboratory and didn't get it.

These are, perhaps, the high spots in a talk I had with Madame Marie Curie, who has been called the greatest woman in the world—discoverer of radium and polonium.

Listen to Madame Curie:

"Poverty? But no, no! And yet it all depends upon what you mean by poverty. If you mean not having a fine mansion with plenty of servants and automobiles; if you mean not going out into the great world of society and wealth and fashion where clothes and jewels are so essential, well, in that way Pierre Curie and I knew poverty all our days.

"But that was not his idea of life, nor mine. You see my tastes are very simple and my worldly wants very few. I live where my husband and I lived for years. It's a plain little place, but it's comfortable."

I would like you to see Madame Curie as she was saying this. She was dressed in a severe black dress which certainly looked the worse for wear. No vanity in this woman. Her iron-gray hair was brushed back from her fine brow. Her hands, as they lay at rest in her lap, showed the strains of work, not only of laboratory research, but of everyday housework.

To understand this woman you have to get her background. Her father, the Polish Professor Sklodowski, was a teacher of physics and chemistry in his native city of Warsaw. Little Marie's playroom was literally her father's laboratory. When she grew up she came to Paris to pursue her studies at the Sorbonne. She lived in a tiny room on the seventh floor of a building in the Latin Quarter. She lugged up her own coal and did her own cooking and washing.

It was at the Sorbonne that she met Pierre Curie, already a teacher there and on the high road to fame. They were married in 1895 and their home consisted of three little rooms.

At one time Madame Curie was doing three things any one of which the ordinary woman would have considered a good day's job—she ran her household and looked after her first-born; she taught at a high school for girls at Sevres; and in their spare time, she and her husband pursued their great chemical researches in a laboratory in a half-barn and half-shed, and impossible to heat in winter.

Their love story, which began with their first meeting, had a tragic finale in 1906 when Pierre Curie was run over and killed. His widow succeeded him in his chair at the Sorbonne, one of the highest honors ever paid a woman by France.

Madame Curie went on in her talk:

"My husband always insisted and I agreed that the great thing in life was accomplishment of the talk for the love of it. When we discovered radium, we both resolved to draw no material profit from it. We published everything to the world and gave all information possible to persons properly interested.

"Sometimes money came to us from unexpected resources. My husband and I, jointly with Professor Becquerel, received the Nobel Prize in 1903. We spent our part on scientific research. I did the same thing with the Nobel Prize awarded me in 1911. Money flows through your fingers when you think of it only in terms of laboratories and expensive minerals that you need in your researches.

"And that leads me to my only bitterness. All his life my husband had to pursue his great scientific work without an adequate laboratory. Once the French government wanted to make him a member of the Legion of Honor. He refused, saying he didn't need a decoration, but had the very greatest need of a laboratory. In this regard I am now better off than he ever was. You see me installed here in the new laboratory of the Sorbonne. But it is still incomplete. France has such a mass of things it is trying to do and the funds are often hard to find.

"I lecture twice a week in the Sorbonne and I work in this laboratory, assisted by my elder daughter, Irene. So even after I am gone, there will be a Curie to go on with the work."

I asked her whether she was ever coming back to America. She smiled one of her wistful smiles.

"I may never get a chance to go back to your generous country. I am kept so busy here. You can tell the American women the magnificent gift of radium they made to me when I was over there is being employed both in experiments and in curative work. But for the American women, I could not have gone ahead as I desired."

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

DAILY MENU FOR THE STOUT AND THIN

Lose Weight

Four tablespoons stewed rhubarb, 1-2 cup cottage cheese, 1 head lettuce, 8 clams, one-half shell, broiled lamb kidneys, 1 cup new cooked cabbage, 1 whole canned pear, 1 slice bran toast, 2 slices gluten bread, 1 pint skimmed milk.

Total calories, 1096. Protein, 352; fat, 124; carbohydrate, 530. Iron, .0216 gram.

Broiled Lamb Kidneys

Six lamb kidneys, 2 large onions, 2 tablespoons butter, salt and pepper, 2 tablespoons lemon juice.

Soak kidneys in cold salt water for two hours. Pare, trim and cut in thin slices. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Melt butter in frying pan, add slices of kidney and brown quickly on one side and then on the other. Remove to a hot platter and keep hot. Peel and slice onions and cook in melted butter until tender. The pan should be covered to prevent the steam from escaping. This cooks the onions. Sprinkle lemon juice over kidneys and surround with onions. This recipe will serve four persons.

Total calories, 839. Protein, 328; fat, 415; carbohydrate, 96. Iron, .0142 gram.

Gain Weigth

Four tablespoons well-sweetend stewed rhubarb, 4 corn meal pancakes, 2 tablespoons fish hash, 1-2 cup cottage cheese, 4 tablespoons chopped nuts, 2 tablespoons chopped ripe olives, 3 tablespoons cream, 1 head lettuce, green pepper, 1 plate noodle soup, 8 clams on half shell, 3 tablespoons scalloped potatoes, 1 cup new cooked cabbage with cream, 1 whole canned pear on 1 slice of sponge cake with 4 tablespoons hot chocolate sauce over whole, 4 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons maple sirup, 1 slice bran toast, 2 slices whole wheat bread, 2 tablespoons square croutons, 2 slices graham nut bread, 1 tablespoon marmalade, 1 Parker House roll, 1 eggnog, 2 cups cocoa, 1 cup hot milk, 2 tablespoons French dressing.

Total calories, 3498. Protein, 412; fat, 1481; carbohydrate, 1605. Iron, .0181 gram.

The cheese, nuts, olives, green pepper and cream are suggested for the making of a salad. The pepper can be used as a garnish for the reducing menu and may be welcomed with the cheese.

The eggnog may be needed at midmorning as the breakfast is lacking in a food rich in protein.

Cocoa adds some fat and carbohydrate to the milk and increases the number of calories, but the cocoa must be made entirely of milk, not half water and half milk, if the same amount of good is derived from it as from plain milk.

HE'LL BE 88 IN MAY

"Uncle Joe" Cannon, veteran of many a heated Congressional battle, has passed from the political stage. Yet he still takes a keen interest in the doings down at Washington. Here's his latest picture. If one of his old colleagues is talking over radio, "Uncle Joe," at his home in Danville, Ill., listens. Fellow townsmen recently presented him with the set. Dominoes and motoring are his other hobbies. The former speaker of the House of Representatives will be 88 in May.

ROSE HILL NOTES

T. B. Fugate and J. W. McLin left Wednesday afternoon to attend the merchants' meeting in Knoxville.

Henry Smith is on the sick list this week.

The Rev. Baldwin of Pennington Gap was transacting business here on Wednesday.

The faculty of the Rose Hill high school was entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Marcum Wednesday night.

There will be a pie and ice cream supper at the school house, March 7. The Watts' orchestra of Middlesboro will furnish the music. Proceeds of the supper will go to equip the athletic department for spring games.

Funds are being solicited and plans rapidly being developed for the erection of a new Presbyterian church near the site of the old one.

ANNOUNCEMENT

It was my intention to leave Middlesboro but conditions have changed and the urgent appeals from my friends have been a big factor in my decision to remain here and resume the practice of medicine. I wish to make this public announcement and offer my service to all from this date. I will, in the near future, take a post-graduate course and a greater part of my work will be devoted to children's deseases.

Dr. E. D. Wells, from Huntington, W. Va., will take over my eye, ear, nose and throat work after April 1.

DR. JAMES P. EDMONDS.

A Million Dollars for New Telephone Plant in 1924

MORE than $1,293,000 will be expended for the construction of new plant and for additions and extensions to the Bell Telephone System in Kentucky during 1924.

This is a continuation of our active construction programme and practically the entire sum is new money we have been able to secure for investment in the telephone business in Kentucky.

The growing needs of Kentucky will require an estimated addition of 3,500 new telephones To accomplish this the telephone workers must handle 46,230 telephone stations during the year—an average of more than 1,340 per month

More than $921,000 will be expended at the local telephone exchanges throughout the State and the balance will be required to add 673 miles of new physical and 143 miles of phantom circuits and reconstruct portions of the Long Distance System.

The telephone workers of Kentucky approach this enormous task cheerfully, feeling confident of your continued friendly interest
